

January 16, 2013

Keihin North America (KNA) is pleased to announce it is consolidating its corporate headquarters into the Flagship Enterprise Center in Anderson Indiana.

Since 2009 Keihin North America has been operating its corporate headquarters function from two locations, an office in the Crosspoint Office Park in Fishers Indiana as well as their manufacturing facility in Greenfield Indiana. KNA executives feel that the Anderson location will allow their associates to gain synergy by being in a single location as well as improve efficiency due to Flagships proximity to its two Indiana manufacturing facilities (Greenfield and Muncie).

"The Flagship facility is ideal in meeting the needs of Keihin North America. Our associates are eager to relocate to a single location. The consolidation of our two offices to one will help us to gain efficiency and drive our strategy toward supplying products and technical support for our customers. We are very appreciative of the town of Anderson for their assistance in this process. We look forward to a long relationship that is beneficial to both Keihin and the city of Anderson" said Koki Onuma, President Keihin North America

Approximately 130 associates will occupy the Flagship facility upon completion of the move, which is scheduled to begin April 2013.

About Keihin North America

As a leading manufacturer of vehicle engine management and climate control systems, Keihin North America is focused on exceeding customer expectations while being a responsible corporate citizen. Keihin North America operates four manufacturing facilities in the United States (Greenfield, IN Muncie, IN Tarboro, NC and Capac, MI) and employs over 1,500 associates across all its U.S. locations. Keihin North America is a major supplier to Honda Motor Corporation. <http://www.keihin-na.com/>

To learn more about this move, please contact:

Matt McLaughlin
General Manager, Administration
(317) 471-7002
mmclaughlin@keihin-na.com